

Research Translation Dossier

Language Access and Digital Trust

A compact multilingual research-style sample for academic, business and public-information translation.

Document type	Research brief with multilingual translation extracts
Working languages	Spanish, English, German, French, Portuguese, Italian, Chinese, Japanese, Hebrew and Arabic
Deliverable model	Edited source text, translated abstracts, terminology table, QA notes
Professional limit	Portfolio sample; not a published study or certified translation

Prepared as a polished portfolio sample. The text demonstrates scope definition, editorial judgment, terminology control and multilingual presentation. It is not a sworn translation, legal opinion, medical advice or academic guarantee.

Executive Abstract

Clear language access improves trust when a service asks users to share personal, academic or professional information. This sample brief presents a research-style argument: multilingual pages should not merely translate words, but preserve tone, consent, expectations and document hierarchy across cultures.

The sample demonstrates a workflow for Scriptorium: source review, terminology control, audience adaptation, localized summary and final quality notes. It is intentionally concise so clients can inspect the method quickly.

Terminology Control

Term	Recommended Spanish	Usage note
language access	acceso lingüístico	Use in service and public-information contexts.
informed consent	consentimiento informado	Preserve legal/ethical seriousness; avoid casual wording.
delivery scope	alcance de entrega	Define what is included before project approval.
revision round	ronda de revisión	Separate agreed revision from new scope.

Multilingual Extracts

EN	A multilingual service page must explain scope, privacy and delivery expectations before the client shares sensitive files.
ES	Una página de servicios multilingüe debe explicar alcance, privacidad y expectativas de entrega antes de que el cliente comparta archivos sensibles.
DE	Eine mehrsprachige Serviceseite sollte Umfang, Datenschutz und Liefererwartungen klären, bevor vertrauliche Dateien geteilt werden.
FR	Une page de service multilingue doit préciser la portée, la confidentialité et les attentes de livraison avant tout partage de fichiers sensibles.
PT	Uma página de serviços multilíngue deve explicar escopo, privacidade e expectativas de entrega antes do envio de arquivos sensíveis.
IT	Una pagina di servizi multilingue deve chiarire ambito, privacy e consegna prima della condivisione di file sensibili.

Quality Notes

A professional translation sample should show decisions, not only final wording. The visible indicators are: terminology consistency, short sentences for service clarity, preserved hierarchy, client-safety language and explicit limits for sensitive materials.
